Every building project – whether you’re renovating a room or building a new house – requires a huge amount of time and energy. Finding the right people to help you can make the process easier and ensure the end result fits your vision.

With the builder hard at work, there were decisions to be made. So many decisions: finishes, paint colors, cabinet styles, materials for counters and floors, knob and handles. The list went on and on. Donna Pfefferle had lists of choices that needed to be made to keep the builders working.

She wanted help making the right choices for her home – and found that help with Rhonda Kemp with Davis Sales, Louisiana’s premier provider of home improvement products and decorative hardware.

“Sometimes I called Rhonda several times a day – I apologized for calling so often, but she was always sweet and helpful.”

The main reason for the Pfefferle move was functional: Donna and her husband wanted a space that was more comfortable for their aging parents. Their existing house was difficult to get around with wheelchairs. They considered remodeling, but didn’t want to live in the house throughout extensive construction. When a vacant lot became available, the couple decided to build a new home.

The Pfefferles also had a vision for the look and feel of the new home they were designing, and budget limitations to work within. Rather than turning to the local big box stores to select items like cabinets and knobs, Donna turned to Davis Sales for personal guidance and advice making decisions. Davis provided the Pfefferles with all of the door and cabinet hardware for their house.

“Rhonda was great. She knew we had a limited budget and helped us pick things out two or three times to get the right look as close as possible to our budget. We loved a bronze handle that Davis had in the store, but it was too expensive. Rhonda found us another product with the same look that was much more affordable.”

The Pfefferles selected handles to provide greater handicap accessibility rather than knobs for handicap accessibility. When a few pieces were lost during construction, Davis sent replacements to the store that was closest to Donna – even though she was working with the more distant main location.

“We would definitely use them again. We’re very happy with the look and function of everything Davis provided, and their guidance and support throughout the construction was so helpful.”

We can help you complete the design of the kitchen or bath of your dreams – one step at a time.
